Design brief

Theme

If you have been to the RAF Museum before, you may remember some of the fantastic collections on display. Our Museum sites at both Cosford in Shropshire and Colindale in London have a huge range of aircraft dating from before the First World War right up to the modern day. Have you got any favourites? If so, you could use these as theme for your poster design.

Have you got a favourite hangar to visit? Perhaps you could include information about your favourite spaces within the Museum.

Royal Air Force
Museum American
Foundation

Aim

Who is your poster aimed at? Who is your audience? We have lots of different people visiting our Museums so you could aim at any of the following:

- Children
- Families
- Aircraft enthusiasts
- Tourists
- School groups.

Information

Your poster needs to include all of the relevant bits of information so that people can find them quickly and easily. You will want to include:

- The Museum's social media and website address
- You could even include some directions!
- Opening times of the Museum
- Free Admission.

Don't forget, we have many more activities that you can take part in while on a visit to the Museum. Each site has a 4D Theatre and a Simulator as well as Virtual Reality headsets – these fun activities can transport you into a realistic virtual world as you soar through the skies in an aircraft! The RAF Museum at London has a fantastic RAF-themed outdoor play area, whilst RAF Museum Cosford has the Fun 'n' Flight Interactive Gallery!

Both sites also have shops where you can buy a whole range of exciting goodies, including aircraft models, stationery and other RAF-themed treats. Don't forget about the cafés too – who doesn't love to eat some delicious treats?

If you have access to a printer, ask for an adult's permission and print some photographs of your favourite exhibitions. If not, you could draw them. Take a look at our example poster templates, or why not create your own design?

Compile your research and images onto a poster and share them with us on social media. We would love to see how you would advertise our Museum.
